MEMORANDUM FOR: Associate Deputy Director for Intelligence

FROM:

[redacted]
Chief, Arms Control Intelligence Staff

STAT

SUBJECT:

Attendance at Colloquium [redacted]

STAT

1. This memorandum asks for your concurrence in the recommendation in paragraph 4 below. [redacted]

STAT

2. I received the attached correspondence inviting me to a colloquium at the National Strategy Information Center on Friday and Saturday, November 9/10. Normally, I would have rejected such an invitation out of hand. In this case, however, because of the subject and because of the other participants (e.g., deGraffenreid and Schneider), there is a case to be made that I should attend. [redacted]

STAT

3. One of the factors that needs to be considered here is that this seminar is intended to lead to a book--such as those books cited in the material. If I attend, I almost certainly will be identified in the book and linked with CIA. Beyond all of that, however, there are questions of propriety and what I call an enlightened view of our long-term interests. Frankly, I am doubtful it is appropriate for an officer such as myself--as a staff employee and working in as sensitive an arena as arms control--to participate in a seminar on a working relationship between US policy and intelligence. At the same time, trying to take an enlightened view, this is a golden opportunity for this Agency to speak up and to ensure that a decent view about this issue is injected into the proceedings. In a way, I am flattered to be invited. In any case, my participation (or not) really ought to be decided by you and other members of the leadership. [redacted]

STAT

4. My recommendation is that I participate. But I will accept instructions to say no. [redacted]

STAT

5. If there is anything more I can do to assist you, please call. [redacted]

Dear

STAT

As you may know, since 1979 the Consortium for the Study of Intelligence has been engaged in the study of future US intelligence requirements, as well as encouraging teaching and research on the subject in American universities.

To this end, we have organized six policy-oriented research colloquia on major aspects of intelligence. The meetings have brought together a select group of scholars, intelligence specialists, current and former senior intelligence officers and policymakers from the United States and abroad to examine and discuss specially prepared papers on ways of improving US intelligence. The edited papers and synopses of the discussions of each colloquium have been published in the series, Intelligence Requirements for the 1980's (Elements of Intelligence, Analysis and Estimates, Counterintelligence, Covert Action, Clandestine Collection).

Our next colloquium will address the nature of the working relationship between US policy and intelligence. Given the significance of the subject and the scrutiny to which it will be subjected during the coming years, the Consortium will hold a two-day meeting on Friday and Saturday, November 9 and 10, 1984, at the International Club here in Washington, to begin to examine this relationship. An outline of the program is enclosed.

I am writing to ask if you can join us for the meeting as your expertise and interest in the subject will be a decided asset to the colloquium. If you can attend, we will provide you with further relevant information prior to the meeting.

I very much hope that you will be able to accept.

Sincerely,

RG/ct
